

Our Building Learning Power Superheroes were inspired by TV Superheroes!

Resilient Robbie was inspired by Spiderman, a Superhero who uses this skill...

Spiderman knows a thing or two about being stuck. He uses his sticky spider web to grip to all kinds of places. However, his great ability to become unstuck allows him to swing freely from building to building, fighting off villains as he goes. Just like Spiderman we get stuck in lessons from time to time, but to be able to get ourselves unstuck is a real skill to master. We are encouraged to use strategies to get ourselves out of any sticky situation, be it in a lesson or a conflict on the playground. In school, and life, the skill to keep trying and trying again, even after we fail several times is incredibly important.

Resourceful Rosie was inspired by Black Widow, a Superhero who uses this skill...

Black Widow led a mission to recapture Captain America. This involved her looking to others to gain skills as she faced the fight about Red Skull. Being resourceful and utilising the skills of others is not an easy skill to master. Just like Black Widow, sometimes we will need to borrow skills that our friends have and use them in our own learning. Aspiring to be like someone else is a good quality for us to have and we are encouraged to follow and look up to positive role models.

Reflective Rick was inspired by Iron Man, a Superhero who uses this skill...

Iron Man had many different suits over the years and he is always keen to improve them. Iron Man looked back at what worked well with his suit and thought about what he could make even better before redesigning a new one. Just like Iron Man we need to develop the skill to reflect on our work and recognise how we can make it better. This is also an essential life skill. Everyone needs to have the ability to look back on a situation and reflect on it. This helps us all to improve our actions in the future.

Reciprocal Ruth was inspired by Scarlet Witch and The Avengers, a team of Superheroes who use this skill...

The Avengers are the all-powerful dream team! They each have specific skills which can be called upon in different circumstances and everyone in the team is valued. Having to work together can be difficult but Scarlet Witch manages to do it through listening to her team and caring about their feelings. Just like the Avengers we have opportunities to work as a team both within school and as part of our local community. Doing this successfully is a very important skill. Making sure all children value and respect every member in the group and caring about the opinions of others is something we all have to work on, but we can all do it if we try!
